FOR 1883-4.

---

DISTRICT NO. 1. Money, $235.78.

JOHN UNDERHILL, Prudential Committee.

Three terms. 28 6-10 weeks. Teacher, Miss Mary E. Wilcomb.

This school, numbering more than fifty different pupils, including many very young children, and also those old enough to take advanced studies, makes a heavy draft upon the resources of a teacher, and requires much skill and discretion for its best administration. Those attending school for the first time made rapid advancement in reading and spelling, and none of the recitations were lacking in animation. The government appeared to be even, and in the main, judicious, and a fair degree of order was secured.

Pupils, 52. Number on the honor roll, 20.

DISTRICT No. 2. Money, $148.05.

JOHN WEBSTER and CHARLES FITZ, Prudential Committee.

Two terms. 19 weeks. Teacher, Miss Anna L. Hazelton.

This district, securing again the services of a good teacher, has held its own, as one in which the diligence and good deportment of the pupils respond to faithful instruction and wise government, on the part of the teacher. We may honestly say that the year's work has been well done.

Pupils, 27. Number on the honor roll, 7.

DISTRICT No. 3. Money, $171.40.

EDWARD J. ROBIE, Prudential Committee.

Two terms. 21 6-10 weeks. Teachers, Miss Vina M. Richardson and Miss L. A. Harriman.

The general characteristics of the school were similar to those of last year. Miss Harriman is entitled to the thanks of the district, for arousing the pupils to more earnest study, and teaching them to make intelligent statements of what they had learned. No clearer understanding of the more difficult problems of arithmetic has been anywhere manifest, nor have better explanations been given, than by some of these pupils.

Pupils, 24.

DISTRICT No. 4. Money, $65.95.

RICHARD C. LAWRENCE, Prudential Committee.

Two terms. 13 weeks. Teachers, Miss Abbie Dale and Miss Lizzie F. Rogers.

Summer term. The school was orderly at both visits, and the teaching faithful and thorough. More animation would have improved the recitations.

Fall term. Miss Rogers, although teaching for the first term, showed an adaption to the work, which promises well. The pleasure of listening to some excellent recitations was marred, however, by disorderly conduct on the part of two or three pupils. Good government must go hand-in-hand with good teaching, or the work will be to a certain extent, a failure.

Pupils 10. Number on the honor roll, 4.

DISTRICT No. 5. Money, $50.05.

ASAHEL WEEKS, Prudential Committee.

Two terms. 22 weeks. Teachers, Miss Lulie M. Colcord and Miss Sarah R. Sargent.

Other schools ending at the same time with this, I could not be present at the close of the summer term. At her examination, and in the school, Miss Colcord appeared to be a ready scholar and faithful teacher. Perhaps the interest of the school would have been quickened by the use of other questions than those found in books.

Miss Sargent had charge of the school in the fall. She took pains to make the pupils understand the meaning of what they studied, and was successful to a very good degree. The school, generally, need to speak with greater distinctness.

Pupils, 12. Number on the honor roll, 6.

DISTRICT No. 6. Money, $53.83.

O. F. PAGE, Prudential Committee.

Two terms. 13 weeks. Teacher in the summer, Miss Annie L. Dale.

The order of the school was comparatively good; also the recitations.

Teacher in the fall, Miss Vina M. Richardson. Miss R. has taught the school for two years previous to this, and has, I believe, given general satisfaction. Some concert exercises, on topics of general interest, would be of advantage mentally, and would train the children to use their voices more freely.

Pupils, 16. Number on the honor roll, 3.

DISTRICT No. 7. Money, $80.55.

BUZZELL FOLLANSBEE, Prudential Committee.

Two terms. 15 8-10 weeks. Teacher, Miss J. P. Hazelton.

The district wisely engaged again the teacher of last year. Thus the work went on without any break, and in no respect disappointed the expectations of its friends. The school is worthy of mention, not only for habits of application, quiet deportment, punctuality, and thoroughness of recitation, but for the amount of work accomplished in the time.

Pupils, 34. Number on the honor roll, 22.

DISTRICT No. 8. Money, $75.91.

MRS. E. E. DOLBER, Prudential Committee.

Two terms. 18 weeks. The teacher for the summer term was Miss Etta E. Griffin, who taught the year before, and the appearance of the school did not differ, materially, this year from last. Owing to Miss Griffin's illness the last of the term, she was not able to conduct the closing examination herself.

Miss Ruth C. Mills was engaged for the fall term. Miss Mills labored hard to secure distinct utterance and accurate recitations, in which the school has been somewhat deficient. A considerable improvement was the result of this endeavor. There was some laxity with regard to order, of which the younger children were not slow to take advantage.

Pupils, 19. Number on the honor roll, 1.

DISTRICT No. 9. Money, $51.01.

AMOS SANBORN, Prudential Committee.

Two terms. 13 6-10 weeks. Teacher, Miss L. M. Elkins.

Miss Elkins did not undervalue the importance of her work, because the school was small, but labored with great earnestness, and ingenuity for its welfare, and showed herself quite competent to the management of a larger school.

Pupils, 2. Number on the honor roll, 1.

DISTRICT No. 10. Money, $38.29.

O. H. TARLTON, Prudential Committee.

Two terms. 12 weeks. Mrs. E. S. Hooke, Teacher.

This school has been increased by the addition of four pupils this year. It still stands first in its record of punctuality, eight out of the nine members having a place on the honor roll. The term of schooling was short, being only twelve weeks, including one given by the teacher, but good use was made of the period of study.

Pupils, 9. Number on the honor roll, 8.

TO TEACHERS AND PARENTS.

Some of the schools have made an improvement upon last year, and, in general, they have not retrograded ; yet in many of them a higher standard is greatly to be wished for. Those entering upon the work of teaching cannot begin with experience, but they would be wise to consider well how they are otherwise equipped for the work. Have they the essential knowledge of the common branches, and some aptness in communicating what they know? Have they the power of winning and controlling children, and patience in drilling them? And, above all, have they the character which they could wish to impress upon children?

Much teaching is done in a mechanical manner, and does not quicken the intellect. More might often be made of the reading exercise, not only by questions on the meaning of the words but concerning the characters or objects introduced. The Geography classes would be made more profitable by a larger use of the wall maps, and by teaching some simple map drawing. And, especially should more attention be given to the Analysis of arithmetical questions. No better foundation can be laid for this, than by the mastery of Colburn's Mental Arithmetic "that only faultless text-book."

A teacher needs a fine sense of order. It is natural for children to rush out of school when dismissed, but they need to learn that the school room is not a play-ground. It is worth while to take some little time at the opening of a term to enforce the habit of taking and leaving the seats in an orderly manner, and this should be done with equal good temper and decision.

The proper ventilation of a school room requires care. Fresh air generally needs to be introduced as early as the first recess, and more freely, as the day progresses, yet not so that the pupils shall be in the current of it. The air of school rooms in the afternoon is sometimes very oppressive, but the change has been so gradual that it is apparent only to one coming from the open air.

Parents should seek to forward the teacher's work by their sympathy and co-operation. The children are the losers if they are encouraged in disrespectful speech or conduct, or allowed to be irregular in their attendance at school.

If the majority of the parents are convinced by personal examination of the school that a wise choice of teachers has not been made, the better way will be to speak quietly to the prudential committee, in season to prevent a repetition of the mistake, another term. A free and open discussion of the case, before the children, would not be judicious.

It is a question worthy of consideration whether it would not be an advantage to combine some of the smaller districts, reducing the number to eight. A part of the money might be used in carrying those who are unable to walk the whole distance, and the remainder appropriated to lengthening the term.

CHESTER ACADEMY.

Thirty-five pupils have been connected with the Academy this winter, under the instruction of Miss L. A. Harriman. I believe I express the general sentiment, in characterizing the term as profitable one, satisfactory to the pupils, and approved by the parents.

This report is respectfully offered for your consideration.
